

Welcome New Faculty!

The department of Political Science welcomes two new faculty members!

Ben Ogden who started this Fall as an Assistant Professor, received his Ph.D. in Economics from Boston University, and a B.A. in Economics and Government from Colby College. Previously, he was a Postdoctoral Fellow in the European Centre for Advanced Research in Economics and Statistics (ECARES) at the Université libre de Bruxelles (ULB). His research interests are in formal theory, with a particular interest in its applications to voting. More information on Ben Ogden can be found here.

Diana O'Brien who starts in the Spring of 2018 as an Associate Professor, received her Ph.D. in Political Science from Washington University, and a B.A. in Political Science from Hanover College. Previously she was a Assistant Professor of Political Science at the University of Southern California and a Associate Professor at Indiana University. Her research interests are in women and politics, representations, political parties, executive branch politics, European politics, and research methods. More information on Diana O'Brien can be found here.

Political Science Department

2010 Allen Building | TAMU

4348 TAMU | College Station, TX

TEXAS A&M
UNIVERSITY